My academic journey as a student in Vilnius University's Marketing and Integrated Communication Master's programme was a transformative experience. This international education broadened my horizons and enhanced my belief in the significance of global talent with cross-cultural understanding. Despite the challenges of being so far away from home and integrating myself in a new culture and language; the vibrant VU community and welcoming city of Vilnius offered a memorable and enriching experience. Engaging with international students, dedicated lecturers, and participating in a semester abroad to Germany were highlights of this programme. The flexible schedules, practical course materials, and opportunities for international exposure, including double degrees and exchange opportunities, made Vilnius University an excellent choice for my postgraduate studies.
